

China Returns to Africa: Destructive or Constructive Engagement?

Daniel Large, Research Director, Africa Asia Centre, SOAS, London

From Non-Interference to Constructive Engagement? China's Evolving Relations with Sudan

Ricardo Soares de Oliveira, Lecturer, Oxford University and Fellow, GPPi, Berlin

The Chinese Oil Strategy in Africa

Denis Tull, Research Fellow, SWP, Berlin

A Chinese Challenge in Africa? How the EU should respond

Chair: Inge Kaul, Adjunct Professor, Hertie School of Governance, Berlin

Monday 26 January 2009, 6pm-8pm

Location: Hertie School of Governance
Quartier 110 · Friedrichstraße 180 · 10117 Berlin

To register, please send an Email to Ms Jamie Manzer, jmanzer@gppi.net by Jan 23.

A joint event by the Hertie School of Governance and the GPPi Global Energy Governance Program

The event is based on the new book "China Returns to Africa: A Superpower and a Continent Embrace" (London, Hurst; New York, Columbia University Press 2008) that examines China's deepening re-engagement with the African continent and the concrete ways in which different Chinese actors operate in different parts of Africa, their political dynamics and implications for African development as well as Western views of this phenomenon.

Food for thought provided. No dinner.